

Revue de presse ANGLAIS

Semaine du 07 au 13 septembre 2009

Time - September 07, 2009

Family Tech

One Ring to Rule Them All (by George Quittner) : Google Voice centralizes calls to your home, office and cell -and transcribes messages.

Life / Going Green

The Four-Day Workweek Is Winning Fans (by Biran Walsh) : Shifting to a four-day workweek could save energy, cut traffic--and make you happier.

Global Business - Megacities

Seoul amplifies its network (By Stephen Kim and Bill Powell) : the world's most wired metro area is extending city services with its U-city project. The U stands for ubiquitous.

New Scientist - September 05, 2009

Cover Story

Full without food: Can surgery cure obesity? (by Claire Ainsworth) : Stomach stapling - surgery that shrinks the stomach to reduce appetite - works far better than anyone ever expected. Finding out the reason why could be the key to curing obesity.

Careers - The Insider

Powering transport: Green means go (by Catherine De Lange) : From electric cars that resemble spaceships to solar-powered aeroplanes, is there a career to be made in green energy for transport?

Feature

13 more things: The nocebo effect : How a diagnosis of terminal illness can come true - even if it's wrong.

The Guardian Weekly - 4/11 september 2009

Science

Three parents are better than two (By Karen McVeigh) : controversial genetic engineering involving macaque monkeys could prevent the transfer of incurable diseases.

The Economist - September 05th, 2009

Technology Quarterly

Environment - Washing without water : a washing machine uses thousand of nylon beads, and just a cup of nulon beads, and just a cup of water, to provide a greener way to do the laundry.

Science and Technology

Antibiotics - A spineless solution : a better way to find novel antibiotics.

Financial Times (Weekend Edition) - September 05/06, 2009

US spending squeeze

Middle classes turn to car park handouts (By Sarah O'Connor) : those not eligible for food stamps are relying on 21st-century breadlines.

Scientific American - September 2009

The Origin of the Mind (By Marc Hauser) : The first step in figuring out how the human mind arose is determining what distinguishes our mental processes from those of other creatures.

The Origin of Computing (By Martin Campbell-Kelly) : The information age began with the realization that machines could emulate the power of minds.

Airlines and Recycling: The Not-So-Green Skies (By David Farley) : New calls for the U.S. airline industry to take recycling seriously.

Courrier International - N° 983 - 03 au 09 septembre 2009

Royaume-Uni

Le carnaval de Notting Hill, fidèle reflet de la condition des Noirs (By Lloyd Bradley) : il vient de fêter ses cinquante ans, mais ce qui est devenu le plus grand festival de rue d'Europe continue à faire battre le cœur de la communauté noire britannique. (The Observer, Londres)

Insolite

Ecologie - au Danemark, on recycle même les morts : La Fédération danoise de crémation vient de révéler que la profession tire profit du recyclage des fragments de métal récupérés après l'incinération des corps. (The Economist, Londres)

Newsweek - September 07, 2009

Environment - Farming

Meat Industry Tries to Turn Itself Green (By Mac Margolis) : Vilified as an environmental disaster, the meat industry, abetted by science, is now trying to change its ways.