

Revue de presse ANGLAIS

Semaine du 28 septembre au 04 octobre 2009

Time - September 28th, 2009

Life

Facebook Gives Birth to the Retrosexual (By Claire Suddath) : Thanks to Facebook, more people are hooking up with long-lost crushes. Some are better off lost.

The Economist - September 26th, 2009

Leaders

The power of mobile money : Mobile phones have transformed lives in the poor world. Mobile money could have just as big an impact.

Climate change - Avoiding a crash at Copenhagen : How to get negotiations on the right track for a deal.

Britain

School uniforms - Badge of honour? : Needlessly expensive school clothes are trying parents' patience.

A special report on telecoms in emerging markets

Mobile marvels : Poor countries have already benefited hugely from mobile phones. Now get ready for a second round, says Tom Standage.

Beyond voice : New uses for mobile phones could launch another wave of development.

Finishing the job : Mobile-phone access will soon be universal. The next task is to do the same for the internet.

The Guardian Weekly - 25 September / 01 October 2009

International development

Waste means want for others (By Adam Vaughan) : rich countries could alleviate world hunger by binning less food.

New Scientist - September 26, 2009

News

Nuclear Industry - How nuclear power could fertilise fields : A new generation of US nuclear power stations could pass on waste heat to fertiliser and petroleum companies, slashing industrial carbon emissions.

Environment

Climate change may trigger earthquakes and volcanoes (by Richard Fisher) : Even tiny changes in weather and climate can trigger geological disasters, so we should be wary of provoking the planet further.

Invasive Species

Immigrant species aren't all bad (by Mark David) : Non-native animals and plants get a poor press, but this often has more to do with prejudice than science, says biologist Mark Davis.

Financial Times Weekend - October 03/04, 2009

Companies - International

Tokyo finds fun and games in short supply (By Robin Harding) : Japan's gaming market needs a shot in the arm.

Courrier International - N°987 du 01 au 07 octobre 2009

Economie

Du slow food au slow money (By Arnie Cooper) : la finance a été pervertie, comme l'agro-industrie, par l'obsession du rendement. Mais si nous utilisons l'argent comme du fumier et non comme de l'engrais de synthèse ? (Miller-McCune, Santa Barbara)